

We are learning how to respond safely to new people online.

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

By the end of this lesson you will be able to:

- Explain what we mean by 'friend' and 'people online'
- Know how people online are different from real life friends
- Recognise ways that people online might be able to connect with you
- Understand that they might not be who they say they are
- Know that you should only connect with people that you know and trust in real life

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

Who are my friends?

Why are they my friends?

What is trust?

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

Is everyone my friend?

Our friends are people who we spend time with, who make us feel happy and do not hurt us.

Activity 1

When we meet someone new, we need to decide if we want them to be our friend. It takes time to be sure and sometimes we change our mind.

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

What is communication?

The ways in which people share
information.

We do this by speaking, writing and actions.

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

What does “online” mean?

“connect”?

What does it mean
to be online?

Who might I talk to online?

How is it different from communicating
face to face?

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

What is my identity?

FOR OLDER LEARNERS

- Your identity is information about who you are and what makes you different from others.
- It includes what we look like and our personality.
- We can change our identity.
- Our online identity is the information that we share about ourselves when we are online.

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

Someone Taff doesn't know tries to connect with him online.

Who might they be?

What should I do?

How do I feel about this?

What would you do?

Can I ignore them?

Activity 2

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

Who are your trusted adults?

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online

In this lesson
you learned:

- what we mean by 'friend' and 'person online'
- how people online are different from real life friends
- ways that people online might be able to connect with you
- that they might not be who they say they are
- that you should only connect with people that you know and trust in real life

Playground
Scenario 1: People Online